“Our Faculty”

The Senior Class of the year '33
Were having the regular class party.
As I entered the ball room that night of all nights,
I beheld a very unusual sight.

Why, who could all those strange people be,
Dressed up in such lavish grand gayety?
I gazed and was almost astonished to see—
Upon my word! It's the Faculty.

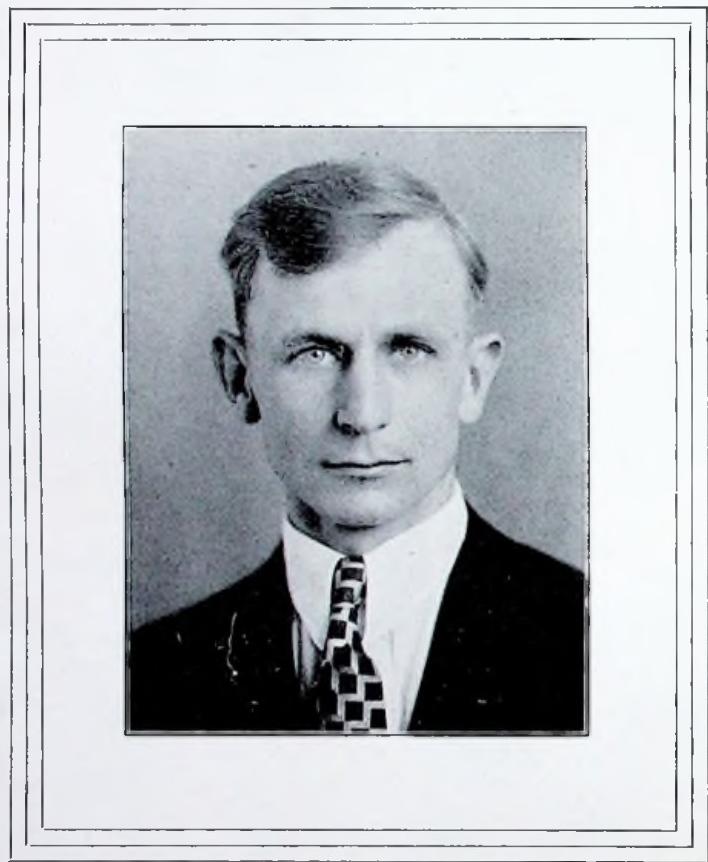

Across the room sat all of the maids,
Dressed as though they had come from some fashion
parades;
As teachers you'd never have known them at all,
But they wore the same faces we'd seen in the hall.

The evening went by, and too soon, I should say,
As I'd like to see teachers always that way.
We all were so glad at this party to be,
And learn they were human, our own Faculty.

And next to the ladies the fellows appear—
Those men who had taught us, so stern and se'ere—
And even the Principal—just think of that!
In a long tail coat and a high silk hat.

And so was the Faculty that night arrayed,
As a note of excitement on each face played;
And no one looked worried—in fact, they were glad
To leave cares behind them; so no one was sad.

But you'd never have known them as teachers that night,
For all wore a smile and a look of delight;
I, for one, was surprised to find they could be
As human at parties as you and as me.

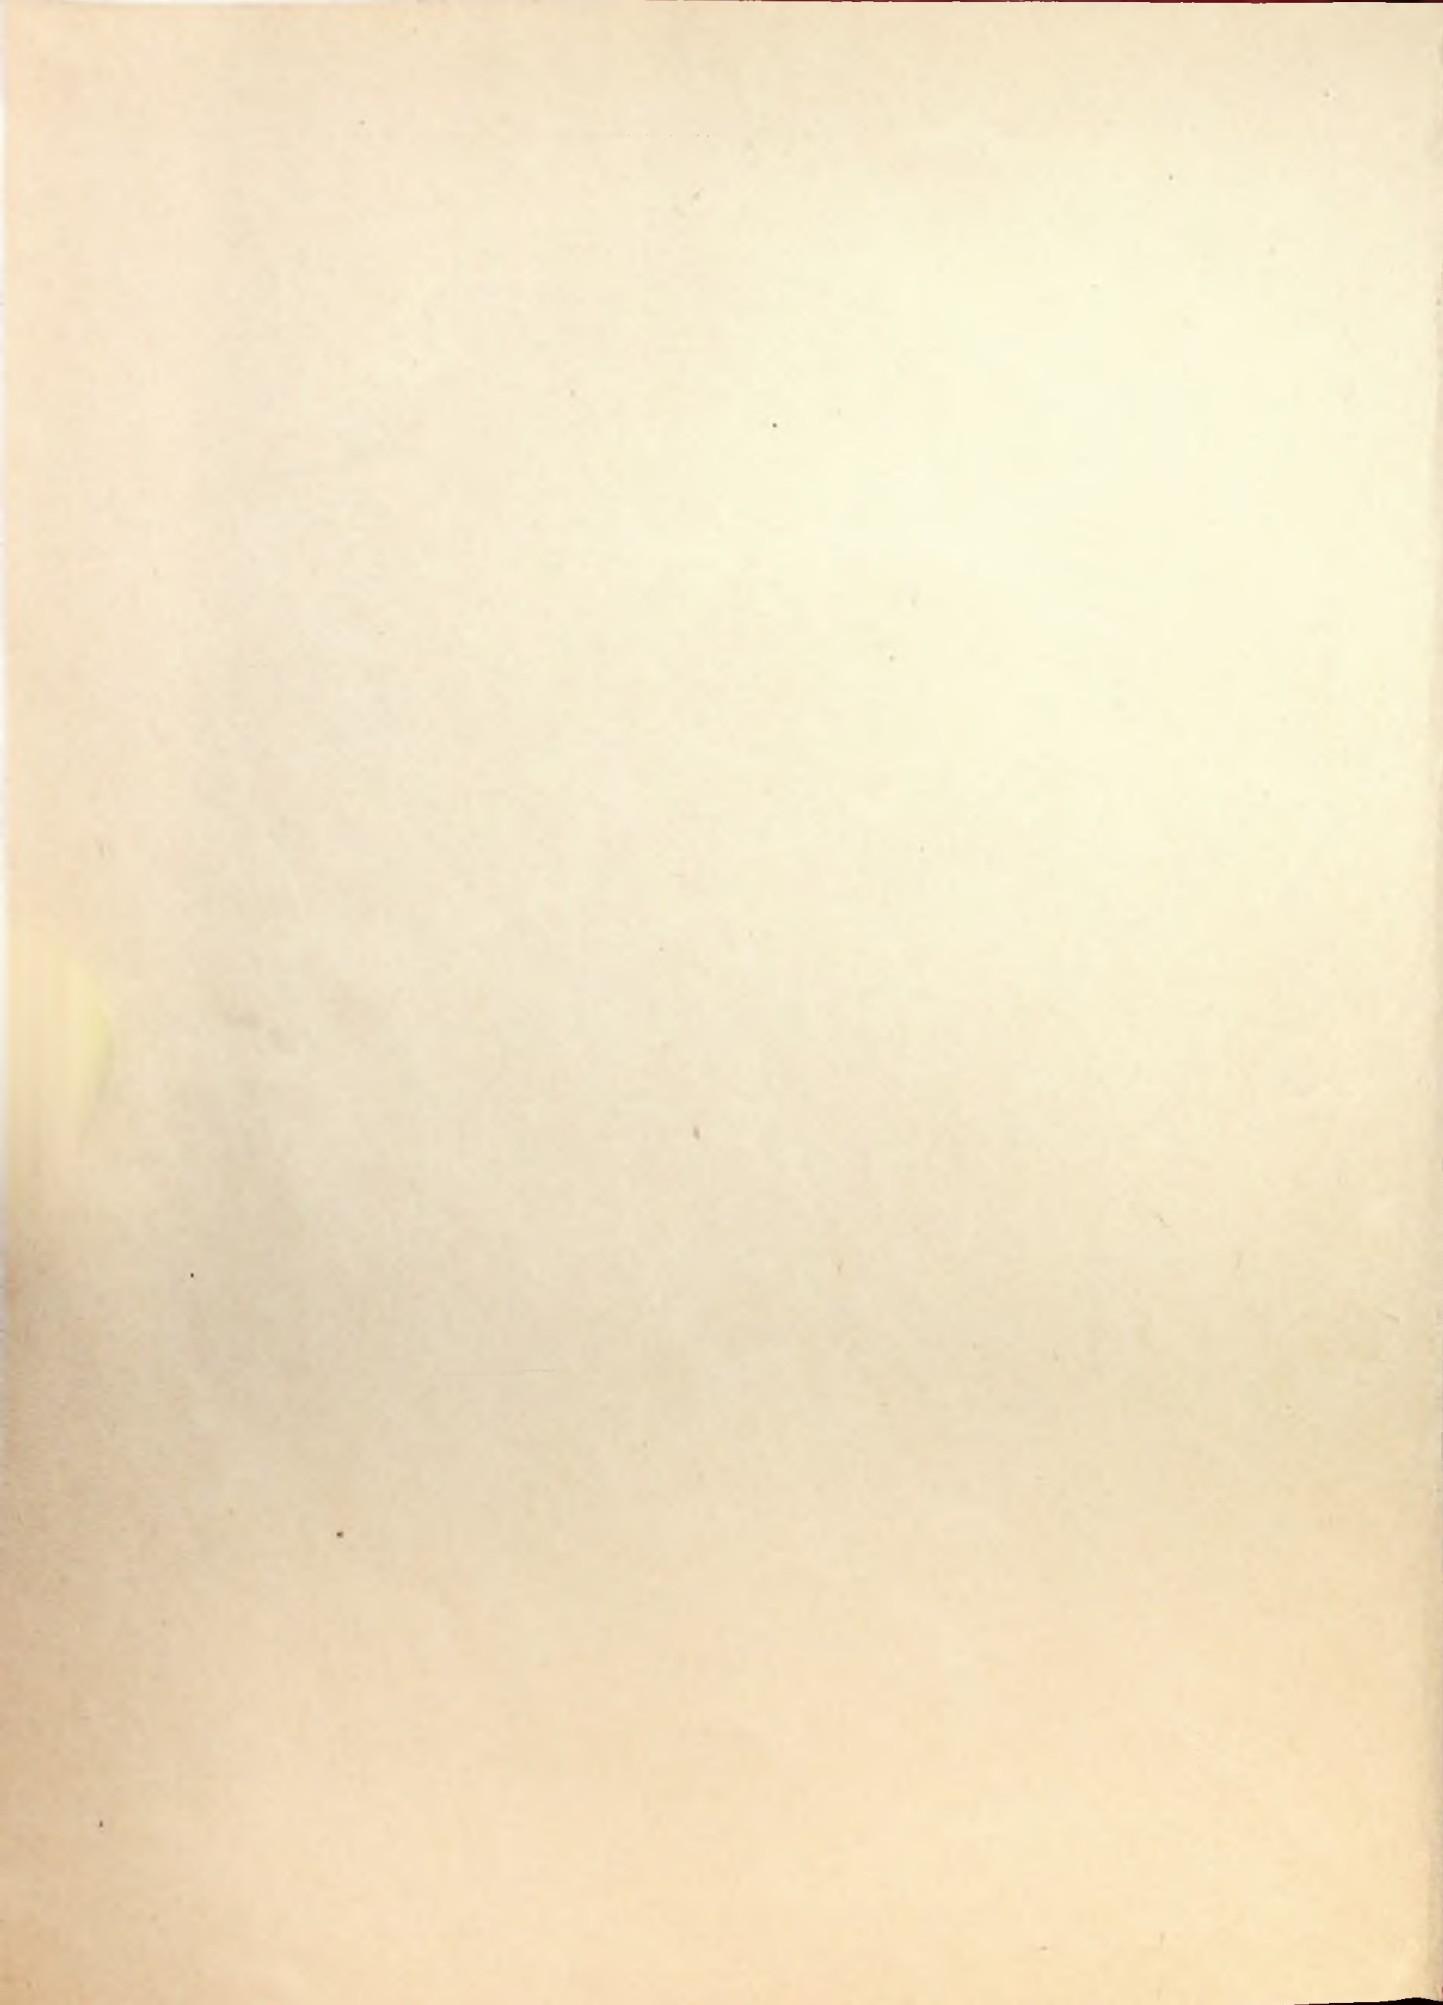

GEORGE E. SHERMAN

TO one who is always willing to give his time to school interests, whose untiring effort in serving all departments of the Mansfield Senior High School and its students makes him indispensable, to Mr. Sherman, our mutual friend, we dedicate this book.

The Class Will

JANUARY 1933 SENIORS

WE, the class of January, 1933, in the town of Mansfield, the county of Richland, the state of Ohio, the country United States, the continent North America, the planet Earth, the only known solar system at present, being in as good mental condition as can be expected under the circumstances, and in much better temper than usual, do hereby make this, our last will and testament, rendering null, void, and of no avail any former will or wills that may have been previously made by us during a period of temporary optimism.

We desire to dispose of our possessions in the following manner:

Item I.—We do hereby bequeath without reservation to the 12B class, our rightful heirs, our most important properties which consist of our egotism, our dignity, and our wisdom, all of which, as you may have noticed, we possess in great magnitude.

Item II.—We also desire to leave them all the examination questions collected by us over a period of three years; for we believe that, like history, an examination often repeats itself. However, we feel duty bound to tell you that we have long since mislaid the answers and therefore cannot include them in this document.

Item III.—Our members desire to leave behind their personal belongings as follows:

1. Our President, Richard Remy, gives to Earl Greene his unsurpassable executive ability.

2. Mark Wolcott and Louise Fitger bequeath their undying devotion to Emily Cox and Bob Oberlin. May it last forever.

3. We leave Louise Wolfe's eloquent oratorical power over the staff to Sarahbell Kramer.

4. Our world-famous football stars give the records and hearts they have smashed to the rest of the players.

5. George Kaler desires that Gene Schwieterman receive his promptness in paying his debts.

6. We give the picture in Raymond Foltz's locker to any one spending his vacation in Cleveland.

7. Miriam Berlo's trim figure and swiftness in running we will to Bob Broughton.

8. Bob Selby's superiority complex is bequeathed to the gentle sophomores. They surely need plenty of it.

9. Virginia Frye gives her tender little attentions to Paul Oberlin in Latin class, to Norma Johnston.

10. Howard Falk's pleasing plump figure we give to Perry Milliken.

11. We will Arthur Schmidt's "rendezvous" to Teddy Appleman in the belief that he can make good use of it.

12. Jane Wentz's peroxide blonde tresses are bestowed upon Betty McConnel.

13. Howard Yarnell leaves his ability to get off the stage quickly to Miss Waring.

14. Our Boswell sisters will half of their voices to Robert Coe, Robert Boyd, and "Red" Seymour. They think that the boys can fill out the other half.

15. Stanley Freeman desires that the Herricks receive his dancing ability.

16. Peg Strickler will receive Flora Speakman's Garbo bangs.

17. The ever-ready smiles of Eunice Beekman and Marie Hoover will go to Robert Wolford.

18. Genevieve Bush's ability to hold her head higher than anyone else in "Fanny and the Servant Problem" we will leave to Inwood Smith.

19. Bob Oberlin is the recipient of Perry Cook's worries.

20. Evelyn Murphy, Gretchen Rike, Gertrude McClure, Lois Stewart, and DaLee Miles give their "pull" with Mr. Sherman to the commercial students that follow them.

21. May Albert Hartman make good use of Harold Copeland's enormous stature.

22. As Lois William's leaving will break Tony Masni's heart, we leave it to all blondes to cheer the poor boy.

23. Mary Phelps' and Delilah Rowe's fountain of tears are bequeathed to any poor soul who ever finds himself in their predicament.

24. Babe King leaves her eyebrow pencil to Yvonne Armstrong.

25. Mary Margaret Richey leaves her poetical ability to Harry Hoiles, who will perhaps use it in speaking to his love.

26. Bob Grudier's wise sayings are willed to anyone who is in need of a mental stimulus.

Item IV.—We will give to any sophomore who is interested a little book compiled by us and entitled "Know Your Teachers." It contains specific information as to which teachers are hard to please, which can be bluffed, what questions to ask what teachers to make them forget the lesson, and what books and authors will make you stand in well with the English teachers.

Item V.—Lastly, the girls bequeath their hair ribbons and the boys their bow ties to the future 12A's. Take good care of them.

We do hereby make the executrix of this will Mrs. Mae Stanford, who has been most kind and comforting during our last sickness.

In witness whereof, we now set our hand and seal this twentieth day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-three.

The Class of January 1933.

Class Poem

Like a minor note in music
Graduation day has come;
With a sad and luring sweetness
It calls back the things we've done.
Like a minor note in music
It cannot be held for long;
And though it crowns the past
With love it bids us to go on.

Like a bud about to open,
Graduation day is here;
In a flower each perfect petal
Represents a past school year.
Like a bud about to open
In a richer, fuller flower,
So our minds will grow and widen
Both in beauty and in power.

Class Song of "33"

Dear old Mansfield high school
We are leaving you;
And all our hope is that you'll keep
A memory of us too.
For we will remember
Ev'ry happy year,
And ev'ry loyal friendship.
These we hold so dear.

When our ways have parted,
Far flung as the sea,
In fancy may our thoughts meet here
In praise of thirty-three.
Sons and daughters scattered,
Still our love so true
Will forge a chain to bind us close
To you, to you.

Chorus:

Loyal and true, we will remain
Scarlet and white light memory's flame.
Long years from now our hearts
will sing
When thoughts of you touch memory's string.

The Class Prophecy

JANUARY 1933 SENIORS

IT was with great reluctance that I left the Elysian fields, those lands of happiness, where I have been enjoying myself for a century, to return to this world of troubles to tell you of the present status of the members of the graduating class of January, 1933. The Lower World has not changed much since the days of the old Romans; every person having successfully reached the Elysian fields is free to devote himself to that which he likes best to do.

As you perhaps remember from your study of the Underworld, a person is compelled to drink from the river Lethe upon entering; this river has the mystic power of making you forget your mortal life. It seems, however, that we sometimes sip these waters of forgetfulness in life. You must realize, therefore, what a great honor Pluto, the king of the Underworld, has conferred upon you and me by allowing my presence here today with the knowledge of both my mortal life and the life which I have just left.

When the January graduating class of 1933 left this building, some of its members entered upon their careers in colleges all over the country; others set out upon the sea of life immediately. This last fact accounts for the shorter fingers of some of our girls, especially those who were graduated from the Commercial Department. They typed and kept books for so many years that their fingers were gradually worn down! Because they worked so hard while mortals, Pluto has arranged special conveniences for them, such as luxurious couches, varied amusements, and the most appetizing of the foods of the gods.

But alas for those people who idled away their time on earth! It is my sad duty to inform you that a few, a very few, members of this class have been sentenced to hard labor forevermore. Their tasks never diminish and they toil on and on. These poor unfortunate people send a message to you: "Take heed. Spend not your time in idleness."

Our class was full of athletic talent, and those who were fortunate enough to enter the Elysian fields are amused by the antics of the old Romans, when they attempt to play such games as soccer and football. Our own members are somewhat handicapped in playing, because they cannot run; they can merely flit slowly about.

Our class was not without its literary people, and from its ranks rose prominent authors and editors. Inspired by that divine power they rose to great heights and can now converse quite casually with masters of ancient times. Pluto has made reservations for these people, too, and they spend their time in reading and discoursing among themselves. Their only regret is that they are unable to use the excellent material available in the Underworld for stories.

Among that happy group in the Elysian fields are some solemn long-faced men and women with a benign expression on their countenances. They do not flit about gaily as the others, but fly soberly as befits their station, for this group comprises our lawyers, our doctors, and our ministers. These members are quite satisfied with their life on earth; the lawyers feel sure that they have conducted many outstanding cases; the doctors are confident that they have saved as many lives as the ministers have saved souls.

The artists form a select group. All of their ambitions have been realized. They not only in life reached the peak of their profession, but now are able to speak quite casually with such masters as Raphael; or if their talent tended toward music, they will at last listen with rapture to Wagner and Beethoven.

If perchance when you enter the Underworld, you see persons now and then looking at you with a smile on their ghostly lips, do not wonder. They are in all probability teachers who are proud to see you enter their abode with laurels on your forehead. They assure themselves again and again that it is because they taught you that you won honors as a mortal. Indeed, they are very distinguished professors in life.

The scientists gather in another corner and tell one another of the famous discoveries that each made—one found a new element and another perfected the transmutation of metals. Taken all in all one feels quite awed in the company of such intelligent men and women.

Our engineers never cease to wonder at the progress made by the world since they left the print of their skyscrapers, bridges, and dams upon it.

Last but not least come a group of tired business men who in life were so rushed that they were unable to enjoy the society of their families. Now they bask in the admiration of their wives, who wondered at their business coups in life.

Having duly performed my duty, my time is drawing to a close and I must hasten to a finish. It will not be long till day begins to dawn, and by that time all ghosts must have vanished. In closing, I do humbly extend an invitation to you from the Elysian fields; for there in the lands of happiness, I will see you next.

Class History

One hundred seventy-four,
We entered Mansfield High.
There were new toils and tasks
For us to try.
But each one did his best
To unite with the rest,
And meet fairly each test
For Mansfield High.

Some in scholarship and learning
Rated high;
In dramatics and in music
We have strived.
In athletics we've brought much fame
To brighten our school's great name.
We've been loyal to Mansfield High.

How we wish these high school
Days could always last.
When we realize that our
Senior year has passed.
When the picnic held last spring.
And the dances we gave both bring Memories of the fun we've had
At Mansfield High.

Our senior party was unique
In every way,
Featuring prosperity,
The topic of the day.
Our class play was a success;
It was ranked as of the best.
In our senior year
We take great pride.

The Manhigan we have once again revived.

May it not in future days be put aside.

For the Hypho we wrote
From news stories to jokes.
Many clubs chose from our ranks
Their able guides.

Although some of our number have gone,
Still new classmates we've welcomed right along.
And on this, our last day of parting,
This largest class of one-hundred
this mid-year
Is starting new tasks in the world to try.

The Class Will

JUNE 1933 SENIORS

WE, the June class of 1933, of the Mansfield Senior High School, City of Mansfield, County of Richland, and State of Ohio, being of full age and sound mind and memory, do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament, revoking and rendering null any and all will or wills by us heretofore made.

Item I.

To the ~~rest~~ class, our rightful heirs, we bequeath that which we can neither take nor destroy; such as, lockers, desks, ~~textbooks~~, and teachers.

Item II.

We direct that all our just debts and accounts ~~overdue~~ be paid from our estate by ~~the~~ June class of 1936. In case of ~~failure~~ to do this may their successors ~~merit~~ said accounts.

Item III.

Silently, one by one,

Gathered from days of the past,

Are left the possessions of ours,

The for-get-me-nots of the class.

1. Deacon Greene, shepherd of our little flock, bequeaths, wills, gives, and delivers to George Sattler, the cares of this famous family.

2. Miriam Bean leaves her joke book to all interested juniors.

3. Upon John Chatlain is conferred the honor of continuing the Boston dialect in which Robert Mann excels.

4. Marjory Sickmiller and Bea Kochenderfer's ability to get to Ashland is donated to Carolyn Wolfe, Helen Balliet, and Janet Olin.

5. To Robert Bovard is given the calm serenity of Harry Hoiles.

6. Ruth Root wills her "sweet and lovely" attitude to Betty Anderson. (Not that she needs it.)

7. That complicated profile of Eugene Henry Schwiererman's is willingly presented to Howard Perry Millikin.

8. Dot Clingan's ability to start scandal she leaves to Lucille Van Derau.

9. Paul Sturges surrenders his seat on the bench to Albert Stickler. (We hope he won't need it.)

10. Dorothy McLeod's conferences with the faculty are practically thrust upon Carol Brooks.

11. The lead roles in operetta are

12. Charley Soprano's superiority complex is handed down to all meek and gentle sophomores. (They certainly need it.)

13. Betty Jane Snyder gladly leaves to Yvonne Armstrong her book on "Make-up Instructions."

14. Those impressive eyebrows of Bob Wolford's are left to Inga Jesson.

15. Betty McConnell passes on down

The June Class of 1933

By Kathryn Pfaff

One bright Autumn day of "30".

Through the halls of Mansfield High,
Came a host of aggressive students.

With a desire and grit to try.

Our aim "to try" for great success,
In our studies day by day,
Has brought to us some good advice,
To continue in this way.

Sometimes the hills have been hard to climb,

And the roads were rugged and long;
But they've all been traveled and left behind,

And we face new roads with a song.

The song may be oftentimes be discordant,

And our paths lie far apart;
But our mutual love for M. H. S.
Will always encourage each heart.

Memories will often greet us,
Of the dear days that used to be;
And we'll still be joined together
By our love for "33".

the line to Annabell Strong. Gene Zediker's attention and gold football.

16. Eugene Sampsel bequeaths his bashfulness to Nook Birmelin.

17. Bernadette Weaver's A. A. points will be sent C. O. D. to Mary Katherine Tawse.

18. That infectious grin of Cliff Smith's goes to James Heiser.

19. Max Garver's agility in getting out of school to Bob Rohrer.

20. Fluency in German is given to Emily Cox by Katherine Balbaugh.

21. Albert Hartman and Sarabell Kramer leave Aileen and Bud to console each other.

22. Bill Smith's graceful acknowledgment of defeat to all those disappointed in love.

23. Betty Hancock's dancing ability to Margaret Farber.

24. The agility of Mary Flowers in avoiding assignments to Martha Giffin.

25. Jack Pealer wills his manly stride to Chalmers Patterson.

26. Isabell Miller leaves her boyish appearance to LaDonna Schuster.

27. Bill Gardner and Ed Martin, the co-aviators, leave the two deserters in Shelby to two more ambitious adventurers; but take heed; profit by their mistakes.

28. Betty Stevick gives, without regrets, all future invitations to New Year's Eve parties to anyone unoccupied on said evening.

29. Ethel Colby leaves her speaking voice to Erlyn Penney.

30. Charles Scott bequeaths his ability to direct study hall to Mrs. Stanford.

31. Richard Greene leaves his unique ability to create sound effects to any and all property men.

32. We regret to say that Inwood Smith has nothing which he can get along without.

In Testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hand, and caused the seal of the great school of Mansfield Senior High to be hereunto affixed. Dated at Mansfield, Ohio, the 2nd day of June, A. D., one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three.

Betty Jane Snyder.

Class History

JUNE 1933 SENIORS

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts:
His acts being seven ages."

—Shakespeare.

It was on June 6, 1930, that two hundred seven amateur players consisting of ninety-eight boys and one hundred nine girls finished the second scene in that second act of the drama of life—the Junior High School. This junior high was the scene in which these young actors had set forth those accomplishments of which they had become possessed during the course of a steady succession of rehearsals and which they had shown in a few minor appearances in their grammar school life. In developing their minds, their own personal ability, and in using their initiative, they became expert. They obtained the valuable knowledge, training, and experience so necessary to ultimate success in this well-known theater.

Many of our number showed a marked proficiency along the lines of dramatic action, music, art, and journalism; so it was not surprising that, upon beginning the third scene of the drama, some of the actors were applauded for splendid work and rewarded by being admitted to various organizations. These extra-curricular activities were formed among members comprising the cast for this scene whose purpose was to develop their talent. Some excelled as members of the band, orchestra, and glee clubs. The high scholastic standing of others or their work in science, art, or oratory met with approval.

When we began the second year of our stay here, several players rose to take prominent parts in our drama. Many a presentation of the Red Masque Club owed its success in a great measure to the clever, realistic way in which one or more of the members of this company enacted the assigned role.

Many an article in the Hyphonerian has been not only more nearly perfect from a journalistic point of view but has been more entertaining as a result of the ability and of the efforts which some actors put forth. More than a few persons suffering from poverty, besides several charitable institutions in our city, have felt the helping hand of these student members of the Social Science Service Club. Numerous were the amateur chemists, physicists, mathematicians, orators, musicians, linguists, reporters, athletes, mechanics, and engineers who appeared as actors in various equally worthy professions.

During the second half of that our junior year, we were bound together more closely by the election of a class advisor, president, and other officers. At last, in September, 1932, we reappeared on the stage to terminate the last scene in our senior high school life. Activities of our group became more numerous until, through a variety of ingenious methods, our depleted treasury was filled.

Last January our class president was presented with the key of the class by his predecessor and with that symbolic transfer of power we thronged the stage as the curtain rose on the last scene. Events made possible and planned by our skillful advisor, officers, and willing committees followed one another until on April 28, our gifted vocal artists made their final appearance in the operetta, "Sonia."

On May 19, members of our class met for the culmination of the social functions of the year, the senior party. On a stage whose atmosphere was that of spring, whose setting that of a veritable garden abloom with blue and gold, we spent a very pleasant evening together.

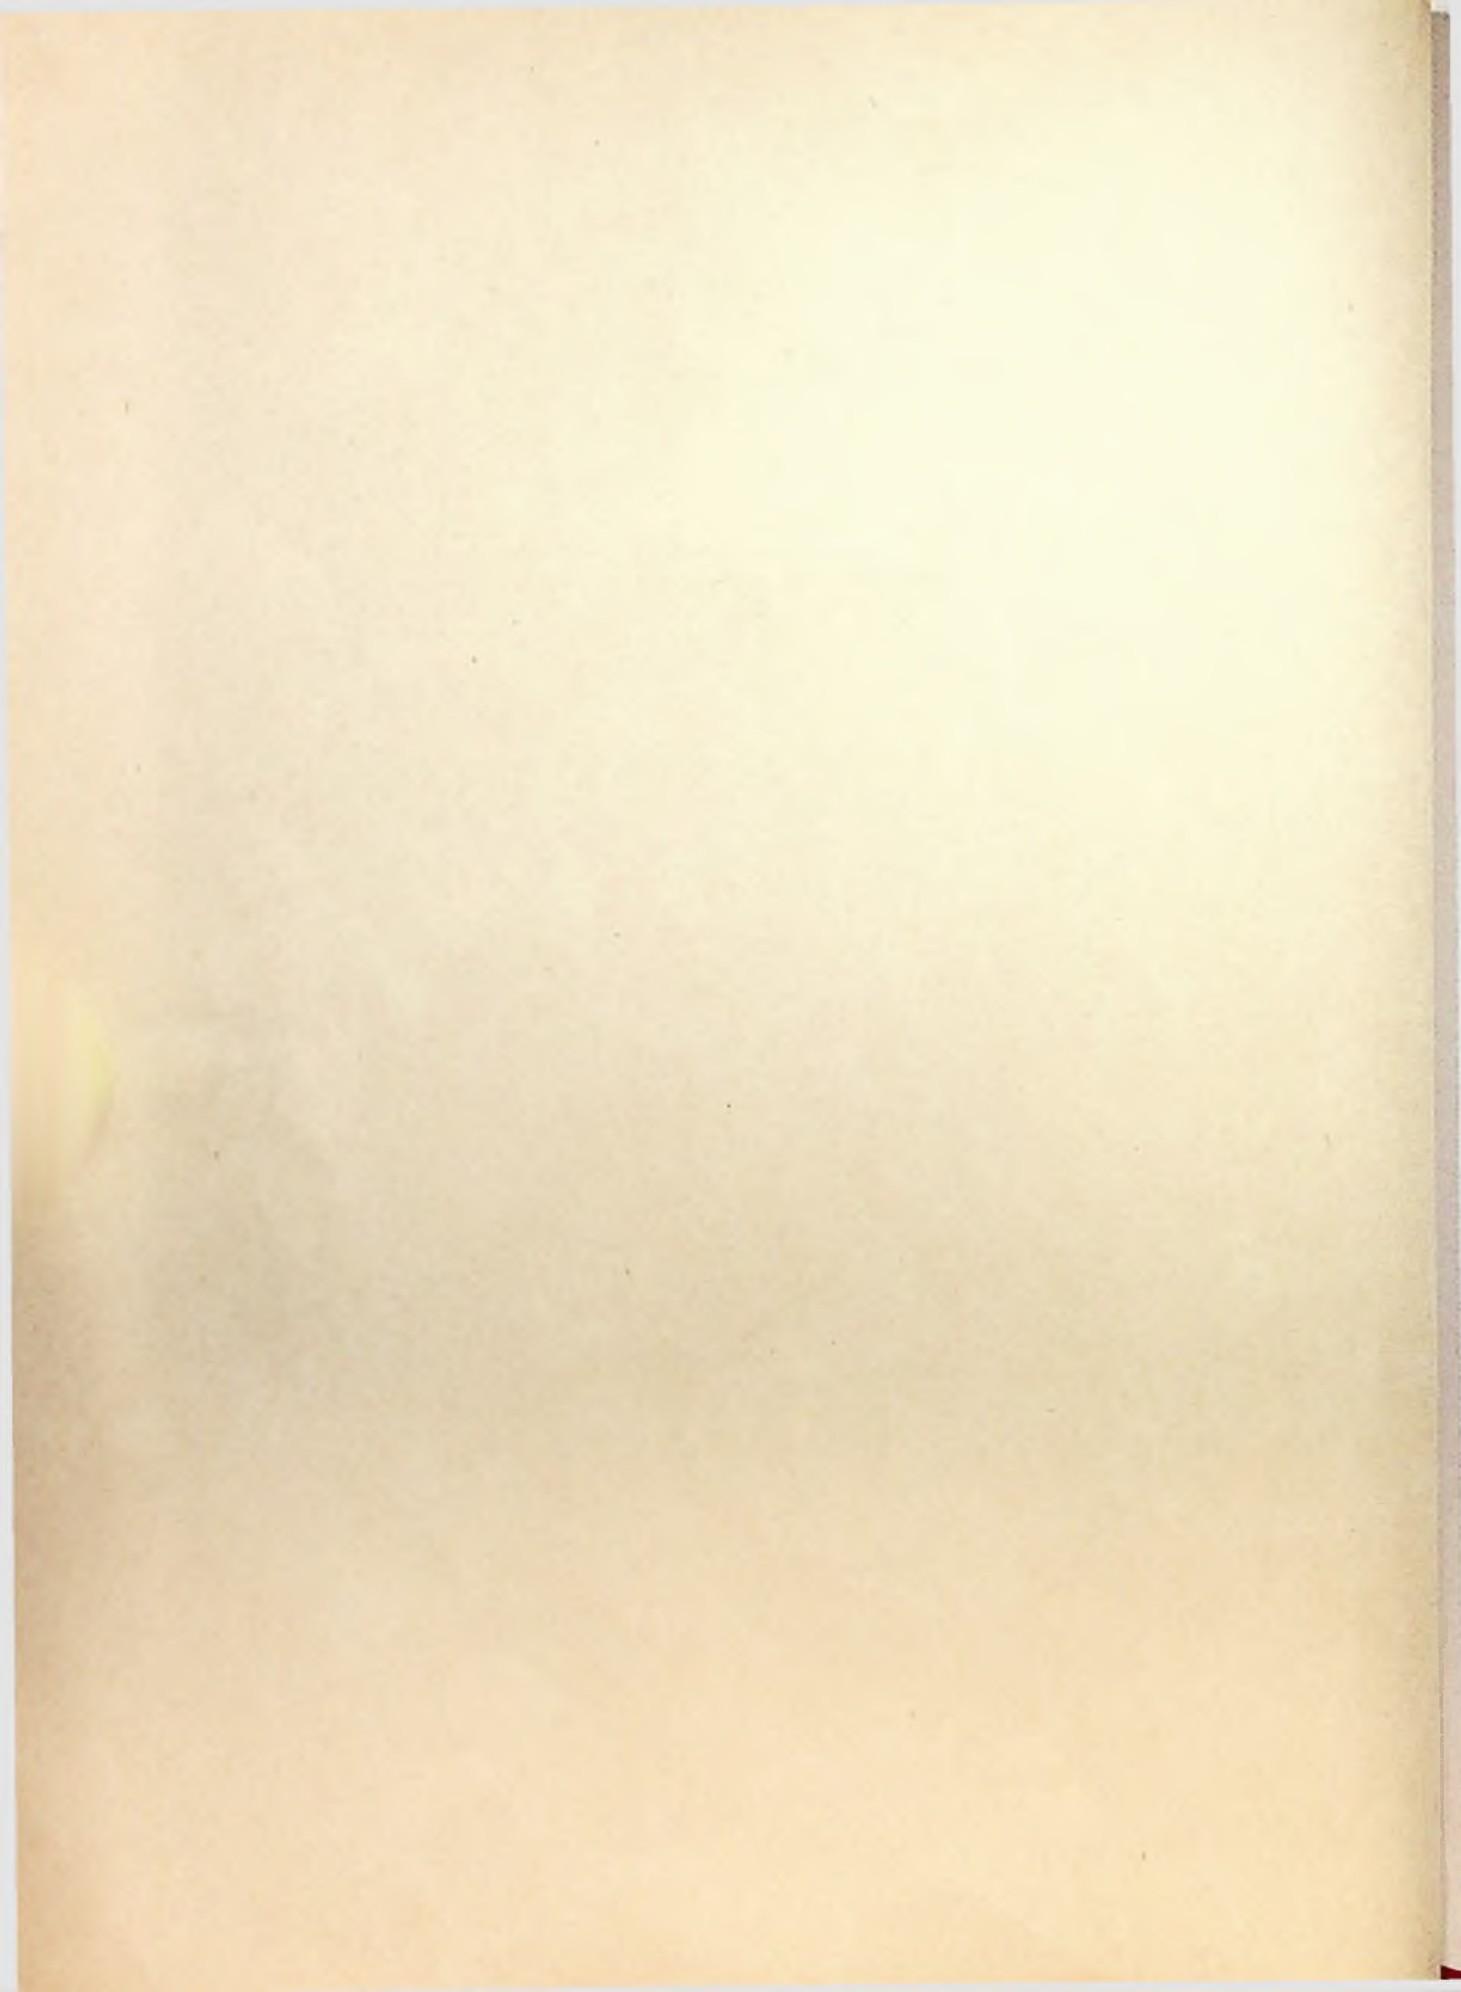

The presentation of "A Lucky Break," a comedy which, through the skillful portrayal of a series of ludicrous and exciting events, brought to the audience a true picture of life in a small town hotel, was the climax of the display of the splendid ability of some in dramatics.

Now another Class Day is at hand and we bring to a close this third scene in the play of life, the conclusion of the ordinary educational course. There are now only one hundred sixty-five of us. Many of our number withdrew or moved; a few failed, some of these in spite of their conscientious labor; others, through their own negligence. Filling these vacancies, a large group from other schools or classes have joined us. As we leave today, we do so with the satisfaction of a task well performed. By no means, however, does our graduation bring to an end this history, for in recalling the quotation, "The chief interest in history lies in the fact that it is not yet finished," we realize that the greater part is yet to be made. Thus we hope that with the aid of the invaluable knowledge and experience gained while playing on the stage of Mansfield Senior High School, the account of the future deeds of our fellow Thespians may be even more illustrious than that of the past.

Instrumental Group

The Band

THE Mansfield High School Band, under the direction of Mr. J. Merton Holcombe, is composed of ninety members. This splendid organization has competed in seven state contests, twice receiving first honors, and twice, second honors.

The band takes an active part in school sports and activities, including football, basketball, and track, by entertaining the crowds at the games. At one time, they were the guests of the Ohio State University for the Ohio State—Wisconsin game. For the cheering crowd, they formed the letters of Ohio State and Wisconsin.

The band members attended the All-State Band Festival held at Cleveland, Ohio, composed of eight hundred members, and have had the good fortune of being directed by some of the world's greatest leaders, such as John Philip Sousa, the march king, Goldman, and Clark. Favorable comments were received from Kryl and his band members.

The band plays all standard music in both marches and overtures; they take an active part in playing for civic activities of Mansfield and have played concerts at the local theaters.

This year's officers are: President, Charles

Ireland; Vice-President, Howard Yarnell; Business Manager, Allen Balliet; News Reporter, Mary Baughman; and Chairman of Board of Control, Arlene Wherry.

The Orchestra

The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. J. Merton Holcombe, has been popular in the school for many years. It entertains the pupils at the school's assemblies, and each year, takes part in the graduation program. This group plays for dinner clubs of the city, which many music lovers attend. The orchestra is taking an active part in playing for three school operettas this year, and the music is of the highest type. Each year, it has been a part of the All-State Orchestra; and it is known throughout the state for its broadcasting over WAIU.

Both Allen Balliet and Robert McFadden, student conductors, take an active part in conducting the band and orchestra at many engagements.

The following are officers: President, Ralph Beilstein; Vice-President, Victor Hayden; Business Manager, James Shannon; and the Board of Control Members, Leo Brown and Marshall Seybold.

Vocal Group

THE Choral organization of Mansfield High School is one of the most active societies in the school. The A Capella Choir is rapidly making a name for itself and is looking forward to a great future, having as its leader, Mr. J. Merton Holcombe. The choir has sung at many churches in the past season. They have contributed to many assemblies and entertainments throughout the city. They also took part in the Christmas program. Mr. Holcombe will present the choir in several numbers at Commencement this June.

Probably one of the reasons the choir is so well received is because of the appearance of the members. The girls wear dark blue dresses with white collars and cuffs. The boys wear dark suits and white shirts.

There are eighty members, consisting of first and second soprano, first and second alto, first and second tenor, and the two bass sections. The officers of the choir are: President, Ruth Murray; Vice-President, Phyllis Parkinson; Business Manager, Albert Hartman; Officers on Board of Control, Forrest Miller and Ralph Wadsworth.

The Girls' Glee Club, which has ninety-two members, has been in great demand. The girls have sung at many social events and have been well received. In order to help the finances of the organization, the girls have had bake sales and have given dances and parties. The officers are: President, Mercille Taylor; Vice-President, Ruth Fiedler; Secretary and Treasurer, Ruth Murray.

The Boys' Glee Club has not made very many public appearances, but they have been active in school entertainment. The officers of this organization are: President, William Shauck; Vice-President, Jack Pealer; Secretary, Richard Nye; Librarian, Forrest Miller; Business Manager, Kenneth Mabee.

“Sonia”

THIS year's operetta, "Sonia," under the capable direction of Mr. J. Merton Holcombe, was one of the finest productions of Mansfield Senior High School.

The story concerns a group of college students, led by Sonia Markova, who plan a surprise party in honor of an absent-minded professor, Ajariah Smythe. Miss Martha Mayflower, Sonia's aunt, a prim lady and full of "oriental philosophy," makes her appearance. She is quite disturbed by the frivolity of modern college life and threatens to take her niece out of school.

Sonia has never seen her father. He was a Russian nobleman and was imprisoned during the Bolshevik Revolution. She receives a letter, saying that he is alive in a Siberian prison, and that if money is sent, he can escape. Pat Dunn, the college hero, is in love with Sonia. He mistrusts the source of her letter and tries to persuade her not to pay the money to Veda Veronal and Boris Ivensoff, the conspirators. However, she plans to go to Russia herself and find her father.

In Act II, Sonia and her college friends arrive. They find the castle so inspiring, they decide to stage a musical comedy which had been planned for the spring festival at college. They prepare for a rehearsal of a Bolshevik mob scene. However, the real Bolsheviks are planning an attack. Pat overhears a plot to have Count Ginwhiski impersonate the lost father. He waylays him and effects the disguise himself. When the Bolsheviks revolt breaks out, there is much excitement.

In Act III, Pat discovers the absent-minded professor to be Sonia's father. He had suffered a blow on the head several years ago and had forgotten who he was. Pat claims Sonia as his reward and they plan to be married.

This musical comedy was presented by a well-selected cast.

Phyllis Parkinson, as "Sonia," gave a very excellent performance. Bill Shauck as "Pat," was particularly well cast and deserves much credit. Jack Pealer, playing "Maurice," won much applause. Martha Smaltz, although a newcomer to the stage, was also very good in her role of "Peggy." Ruth Murray, as "Martha Mayflower," furnished a lot of fun. Albert Hartman, as "Professor Smythe," deserves much credit for his excellent portrayal. Jane Wilson, as "Veda," played her part capably. Wilbur Shafer, as "Boris," was also well received. Helen Butts, as "Sally," Arden Reynolds, as "Count Ginwhiski," and Anthony Shylo, as "Drosky," also played their parts well.

The choruses were exceptionally well trained and added much to the presentation.

The specialty choruses were composed of Ruth Wooldridge, Helen Seaton, Catherine Young, Vivienne Bailet, Dorothy Bacon, and June Betz.

The Marine chorus featured Ralph Wadsworth, Allen Balliet, Perry Millikin, Joe Beal, and Harry Hoiles.

Miss Emma G. Waring and Miss Margaret Clapsaddle contributed to the success of the play by their coaching in dramatics and dancing.

Hi-Y Activities

George Williams Senior, The Junior, and The Sophomore Hi-Y Clubs of Mansfield High School have had an interesting and constructive season.

Weekly meetings in charge of their officers have been most active and well worth while. These meetings have included talks by prominent men of all ranks and positions in life, discussions, and social functions; thus they have furnished entertainment, knowledge, and experience.

They have done many things to help others. For example, food was dispensed to the poor at Christmas time and the Passion Play movie was sponsored, the proceeds of which were given for a good cause. Delegates were sent to one state and one regional Hi-Y conference. Through all this, the aim has been to develop good, clean, Christian character.

The outstanding activities of the Senior Hi-Y have been the formulation of a code of ethics for its members and the affiliation with the national Hi-Y movement. The officers of this group are: President, Frederick Becker; Vice-President, Robert McClurg; Secretary, Becker Jenkins; Treasurer, Paul Sturges, J.; Advisor Mr. H. D. Bishop.

The officers of the Junior Hi-Y group are: President, Robert Morrison; Vice-President, George Tobias; Secretary, Don Zalenka; Treasurer, John Davey;

Blue Tri

The Blue Tri organization is a girls' club whose aim is to bring about higher morals, raise scholastic standards, and provide for social contacts. The club has done much worthwhile work this year, such as filling Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets and pledging sums to various worthy causes. The programs have been planned to be instructive as well as interesting. The collegiate dance, the Southern dance, the annual Hi-jinks, and other social affairs rounded out the year.

One new feature of the club this year was the hobby groups. These groups provided the opportunity for a girl to take part in some activity in which she was especially interested. During the first semester, the groups organized were bridge, athletics, palmistry, and dramatics. The French conversational and Know-your-city groups were substituted for bridge and palmistry.

The president for the first part of the year was Betty Hanson, and for the latter half, Ruth Root. Miss Naomi Uncapher is the advisor of the group and Miss Doris Garver, faculty advisor.

Departmental Scholastic Activities

Departmental Scholastic Activities

THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

By Mr. V. C. Ketner

Each year in the Science Department there are students who are willing and anxious to do more than is required of them. These students are given projects to work, these projects often requiring the assistance of other departments, the Vocational Department being especially helpful.

In biology, with Miss Aberle and Mr. Elder as teachers, many very interesting things are done,—in the Autumn, collecting and studying insects and small animals, hunting birds with motion picture cameras and field glasses. The seeds and fruits of weeds and other plants are gathered with the idea of learning about seed dispersal, and studying the size, shape, and colors of seeds. In the springtime, many field trips are taken to study flowers, trees, birds, and small animals in their natural surroundings.

The Photo Club and the Biology Department, together, are making complete sets of photographic prints of different phases of biological work. This saves much time and makes the study of biology more interesting.

Mr. Hypes, who has charge of the work in chemistry, has arranged a post-graduate course in qualitative analysis for those students who are especially interested in chemistry. The students taking this course work in the regular chemistry periods, where classes are small. Aside from the notebook of formulas which is kept, and the reports of unknowns handed in, the work is all done in the laboratory.

The subject itself deals with the identification of metals and the acid radicals. The different metals are separated by forming a precipitate and filtering the results, thus separating the residue and filtrate. This is continued until the metals are free. They are then tested, in many instances, by tests given in the regular chemistry course, and in others, by new and more complicated tests.

After working through each of the groups of metals separately with solutions which are known to contain all of the metals in that group, a number of unknowns are worked out.

Although no credit is given for this course, it is valuable as advanced chemistry work, whether or not the student is going to college.

Several students who have been interested in the electron theory of matter have constructed atomic models of many of the elements, as hydrogen, helium, lithium, and radium. Others have constructed charts of samples of the by-products of coal and crude oil. This makes the study of the subject very interesting.

In the Physics Department, students have taken X-ray photographs of many small animals in order to study the skeletal structure of small live animals. These photographs are used by both biology and physics students.

Members of the Photo Club, biology, and physics classes have also taken microphotographs for use in the biology classes. This project teaches the student the principle and uses of camera and microscope, and the use of lenses.

At present, a microprojector is being built by several boys in the Physics Department. This instrument sends rays of an electric arc lamp through a microscope and projects an image of a slide on a screen. In this way, an entire class may study a slide at the same time. Physics and chemistry students may use this projector to study the growth of crystals.

Another problem which is interesting quite a large group of physics students is the building of a speech and sound amplifier. By means of it, the tick of a small wrist watch may be made to sound like a trip hammer. Another electrical device will change light rays into musical tones.

In conclusion, it might be said a sincere student of science learns that there seems to be a limit to our ability to understand science in all its relations, thereby becoming more reverent for the unseen Power that is over and within all.

An honest search for the truth will prove to be quite valuable, and as Burbank once said: "The truth shall make you free and not leave you in the bondage of superstition and fear."

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

By Mr. H. V. Oberlander

Vocational Education, as the name applies, is the teaching of subjects of less than college grade. In its first form, the Guild system, the boy was apprenticed to his employer, or a contract formed by three parties, the parent, employer, and the boy. In some cases, in the more highly developed skills, the boy, in addition to serving his employer, was compelled to pay for his training in money besides.

The Mansfield Senior High School is offering instruction in several mechanical and technical pursuits; namely, mechanical and architectural drafting, machine shop practice, automotive mechanics, automotive electricity, pattern making, sheet metal, blacksmithing, heat treating of metals, and some foundry practice. Except for an electrical course, practically all phases of industry in Mansfield are represented in our senior high school shops.

The Pre-vocational shops in the Junior High School aid greatly in our selection of students for the various courses; emphasis here is placed on the study of vocations. Here he learns what to look for, what to ask about, and how to proceed to gather the necessary facts. There are certain specific items of information which should be known about a vocation by the person who is thinking of entering it—for example, what it is; the importance of the vocation; nature of the work; supply and demand of workers; physical conditions surrounding workers; regularity and permanence of employment; and income.

The course has proved popular with boys who do not intend to enter college, and in some ways may be called the Tradesman's college.

Vocational work, as such, was first entered into the curriculum in the Mansfield Senior High School in 1926, supported by local industry and State and Federal funds. From 1930 the enrollment increased from thirty-five boys to one hundred twenty-five boys in 1933.

The products of our various departments are disposed of through the Board of Education at cost. Small machine tools, such as lathes, shapers, milling machines, jointers, table saws, band saws, drill presses, jig saws, screw jacks, and repair work of a mechanical nature for the various schools, are built up complete in our machine department.

The pattern-making taught is in connection with the machine shop course and all patterns are made for the machines built in the school shop. In this department we teach the structure of different woods, construction of various patterns, and all information relating to the trade.

The addition of auto mechanics has proved to be a very interesting and practical course. Under the instruction of an expert mechanic, with rare teaching ability and a well-organized program, the boys learn not only how to repair the mechanical and electrical troubles, but how to diagnose and prevent such occurrences. All types of various units of the automobile are studied, compared, and a study made of the making of adjustments on each.

Each of the three courses offered—Machine Shop, Pattern-making, and Auto Mechanics—is a unit trade and co-operative course: each boy spends three hours each day for two years on his chosen trade in the school shop. In addition, he is given one hour each day of mathematics and one hour of industrial history relating to his trade, making a total for two years of 1800 hours.

At the end of the second year, or the beginning of the senior or cooperative year, the boy (industrial conditions permitting) is placed on a job where he spends two weeks in industry and two weeks in school, two boys alternating on each job. While in school, the two weeks are spent on subjects, such as industrial physics, shop mathematics, and mechanical drawing.

Upon completion of the course the student is granted a Vocational Certificate or Diploma.

THE ART DEPARTMENT

By Miss Doris M. Garver

Award of first prize in its division of a nation-wide poster contest brought a distinct and novel honor to the art classes of Mansfield High School during the past year.

Although competing for the first time in this contest, sponsored by the National Humane Society Headquarters in New York, the local classes gained national prominence through their work. The winner of first prize in the Senior High School division of the country-wide contest was Eileen Picking, a member of the 11B class, while, in addition, lesser awards were won by Ruth Cox, a member of the 12A class, and Louise Tomlinson, of the 11A class.

Poster work, however, is but one of the divisions of the work of the art classes, for there are many other phases of endeavor that are instructive and worth-while. The work of these classes is aimed primarily to create an appreciation of beauty and to give students a general understanding of art as a vocation.

A new problem offered this year, which met with gratifying response on the part of M. H. S. art students, has been the making of shades, either for bridge, table, or floor lamps. The students were urged to use their own initiative in developing ideas for these shades and considerable latent ability along this line was revealed. These shades are made at a nominal cost of a few cents and many have been worthy to supplant more expensive ones in the homes of their owners.

In connection with the making of their lampshades, a number of students during the past year devoted time during their work in pottery to the making of bases for lamps, thereby furnishing their homes with complete lamps for little cost other than that expended for the electrical connections.

Although somewhat handicapped at the present time by the lack of a kiln for the baking of the pottery objects, effort is being made by the art classes to raise funds for the purchase of such an oven. During the last Christmas holidays, slightly over twenty-five dollars was realized by the students through the sale of plaques and silhouettes. For the past few years, the classes' work in pottery has been taken to the kiln in Mt. Gilead.

Further national recognition has been accorded the art classes of Mansfield High in that for the past two years the Junior American Red Cross has made a request for Christmas menu cards for the United States Navy. These cards, made from block prints, are distributed to the naval craft throughout the world and each year have brought letters of sincere appreciation from the National Headquarters of the Junior Red Cross and from the naval officers.

The classes in art deal with fundamental, applied, and specialized work. The fundamentals deal in sketching, free-hand drawing, perspective, lettering, brush and pen work, color and its use in design. The applied work deals in water color, oils, pottery, lampshades, and block prints, while specialized work is conducted in posters and sketching.

Somewhat surprising, perhaps, is the fact that no special talent is needed for such class work. Primarily and essentially is the need for a sound and complete interest.

Increasing interest in the class work can be seen in the fact that for the first time, a club devoted exclusively to art has been organized. This group, to be known as the "Pen and Brush Club," includes twenty members. Its officers are Gwendolyn Taylor, President, and Marianna Springer, Secretary-Treasurer.

ANNALS OF DRAMATIC DEPARTMENT, 1932-1933.

By Miss Emma G. Waring

The Senior plays and the activities of the Red Masque Club constitute the interests of the Dramatic Department. All prospective graduates are eligible for the Senior play of that semester. On December 2, 1932, the January graduates presented the play "Fanny and the Servant Problem," by Jerome K. Jerome. On May 26, 1933, the June Class gave "The Lucky Break."

As time permitted, one-act plays were presented by members of the Red Masque Club. For parents' night during National Education Week, the mystery comedy, "The Grand Mogul's Diamond," by Allan Monkhouse, was given. This was later repeated for a Friendly House entertainment and for the third time given after school for the benefit of those of the student body who cared to stay.

Dickens' "Christmas Carol," with its attractive period costumes and pantomimes, was chosen for the last assembly program preceding the holiday vacation. This was repeated the next morning at the city party for poor children at the Madison Theatre. For Washington's Birthday, seven girls of Red Masque gave "A Dish of China Tea," by Elizabeth H. Neff. This gave in costume the Tory side of Washington's victory at Yorktown. This play was also repeated on February 22 at the annual Sorosis luncheon.

The Red Masque Club, which meets every other Thursday after school, has an average membership of fifty, twenty-five girls and twenty-five boys. Programs of plays of various types, such as history, comedy, and tragedy, were given during the current year. These plays were directed and acted by the club members. Although, of necessity, many imperfections and crudities result, the effort and experience are invaluable.

OUR COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

By Mr. George E. Sherman

Commercial Education should train boys and girls to be self-reliant citizens; give them a definite training in one or more skills, which will provide them with an immediate contact with the business world; and afford a general business education, enabling them to spread out or take advantage of any advancement that might avail itself to them. It should also teach enough of the cultural subjects that the pupil may have the capacity to enjoy some of the finer things in life and be intelligent, broadminded individuals.

The Commercial Course in this school has the following objectives: the training of boys and girls to be self-reliant; to meet emergencies; to form judgments correctly from the fund of actual information they have acquired; to be accurate and thorough; to strengthen certain traits of character; and to become servants of the business world.

The enrollment in the commercial classes is now 1198 as against 4627, the total class enrollment in the school. The attraction for the commercial course has in the past been the opportunity to go to work immediately after graduation. Because of economic conditions, graduates are unable to make their education productive immediately after graduation. Despite this fact, the enrollment has increased substantially. Students who formerly had made plans to attend college were compelled to change them and come back to school to avail themselves of the commercial education offered.

Commercial students have helped out the schools more this year than ever before. You may find them working late in the evenings. They have gone to every school building in the city to work half days for the principals. They also help with many of the duties around the school; they print the daily menus for the teachers' lunch room, type the announcements for the daily bulletin, run tests for examinations, do a large part of the work on scheduling classes, and act as private secretaries to various members of the faculty. This has not only been excellent experience for the students, but their splendid effort has saved the schools much money.

Commercial Education has passed through its darkest hour—that of having graduates without work—and has stood the test. It is definitely a part of any high school curriculum and is recognized as having values other than utilitarian.

THE HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT

By Miss Grace Essex

Homemaking is a complicated job, involving many sorts of activities, depending on the kind of home in which one lives. It may include housework, marketing, managing the children, interior decorating, and nursing. Whether a home is made in one small room or in a great house, we need to think of homemaking as a business or a profession, and to think more deeply and intelligently about our home living. Regardless of the activity in which one is engaged after graduating from high school, every girl will spend some portion of her time in a home of some kind. This home will be comfortable and happy, depending upon the degree of ability which the individual has as a homemaker. No one can be completely happy, no matter how successful in a business way, unless he enjoys a comfortable and satisfactory home life.

The Home Economics Course which is offered in Senior High School is planned to assist girls to meet successfully every type of problem which must be dealt with by the homemaker. For purposes of study, the two-year course includes units dealing with Child Care and Development, Home Management, Family Relationship, Foods and Nutrition, House Furnishing, Laundering, and Clothing. It is appreciated, however, during the study of this course, that these problems are, in reality, very much related and that many of them depend upon each other. Poor home management invariably brings unhappy family relationships.

These various units are presented to the students by the use of problems. Life situations arising from the experiences of the students are used when and if possible; otherwise, problems paralleling life situations are substituted. It is hoped that as a result of the directed study and laboratory work, which is essential to the solution of these problems, students not only comprehend Home Economics, but are enabled thereby to solve all of life's problems more nearly successfully. By means of Home Economics problems, they are taught to think.

The laboratories which are provided for the study of Home Economics are carefully equipped. No detail has been omitted which is essential to the work of a careful student. Both spring and fall dresses, as well as smaller garments, are designed and made in the Clothing laboratories. Each student makes seven articles of clothing during the two-year course. Family meals are prepared in the Foods laboratory, and served correctly in the dining room of the Home Economics apartment. The apartment also affords a proper environment for the study of furniture arrangement and for actual practice in Home Management. A Home-Nursing laboratory, which is equipped with a hospital bed, linen, and other supplies, contributes to the interest in Home Nursing. Each student practices making the bed for a patient and bathing a patient in bed.

Since it is believed that the home provides the best laboratory, home projects are required of each student enrolled in Home Economics. These projects arise from the girl's interest in the subject, and are planned and completed by her if they represent an attempt to do a little better the things the students already do in their homes. For each year of Home Economics, including home projects, the student receives one and one-fourth units of credit. Two and one-half units are received for the successful completion of the two-year course.

Those students who plan to graduate in the Home Economics Course are required to complete for graduation two years of home economics, two years of social science, three years of science, and three years of English. If the student chooses carefully the electives which are required to complete sixteen units of credit, it is quite possible, after successfully completing the course, to meet college entrance requirements.

The Home Economics Course is especially recommended to those students who wish to enter a nurses' training school.

THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

By Miss Bertha K. Patterson

It is a rather prevalent opinion that literature is a mere play of imagination, entertaining enough, but without serious or practical importance. Nothing is farther from the truth, for literature preserves the ideals of the people—the ideals upon which our whole civilization rests solidly for its foundation. And so, as we study in literature these ideals upon which a great civilization has been built, we develop that sympathy and understanding of humanity which is so necessary for success in life.

In the English Department, therefore, emphasis is placed on the study of literature, itself, rather than on the history of literature.

Thus, it is the aim, through the study of literature, to broaden the student's outlook, to give him a keener sense of values, and to help him become an intelligent, self-dependent reader, capable of guiding his own reading and of worthily employing his leisure. To this end the department offers three years of English in the Senior High School.

English 10B and 10A offer instruction in punctuation, composition, and the study of the classics.

English 11B and 11A offer an interesting, entertaining, and practical study of American life and ideals developed through poetry, the essay, short story, and the novel.

English 12B and 12A offer a picture of English life and ideals through two centuries of poetry, drama, essay, and novel.

The home reading, required each year as a part of the course, helps to broaden the student's outlook, to make him more widely acquainted with what is best in the literary world, and to aid him in setting up a standard of judgment by which he may measure relative values.

To the student who wishes to put his English to practical use, the department offers work on the Hyphonerian, "Voice of the School." Each semester this publication affords a large group of students an interesting and enjoyable project in creative ability.

THE FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

By Miss Bertha K. Rues

Goethe said, "Who does not know foreign languages, knows nothing of his own language." One of the chief reasons for studying a foreign language is that one may get a better understanding of English through a study of the meaning, origin, and growth of words; that one may enrich one's English vocabulary through an increased ability to understand the exact meanings of words derived directly from foreign languages.

The field of foreign languages in the Mansfield Senior High School is composed of Latin, French, Spanish, and German. The Latin Department offers a two-year or a four-year course. Mrs. Chase is instructor in this subject. Latin opens to the student the culture and intellectual life of the Romans. The study of Latin is a direct and convenient way to a liberal education.

The school offers two-year courses in Spanish, French, and German. Miss Patterson teaches the Spanish; Miss Mendenhall, the French; Miss Rues, the German.

These modern languages have a practical and also a cultural value. Their study helps to bring about a more sympathetic attitude toward other nations and to foster the feeling of brotherhood, and thus to work for world peace. The pupil also learns to enjoy the treasure of literature in other languages and to appreciate the character, thought, and manners of people of different nations.

Geographically, much of the Latin-American trade should go to the United States. There is need of men and women who know the Spanish language and have an understanding of the manners and customs of the people.

German and French are both valuable for later scientific and professional study. German is especially valuable, because of its closer kinship to the English language.

Learning to use a foreign language fluently and readily, can not be accomplished in two years, however, unless one should live with a French, Spanish, or German family, and hear the language and speak it all day long. While the utilitarian viewpoint deserves some consideration, yet the study of modern foreign languages is more a process of culture and liberalization.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL SCIENCE

By Mr. R. C. Ballenger

To understand modern life and how it came about is the chief aim of social science.

In order that pupils may understand the conditions under which we are living, the Department of Social Science offers courses in addition to those of history and civics found in the usual high school. These added courses are made as practical as possible and include commercial geography and social and economic problems of democracy.

The geography course covers two semesters of inquiry into the sources and methods of acquiring those materials necessary for our complicated modern industries. The social problems course includes a semester of investigation into those problems which grow out of our numerous contacts with each other—in family, school, industrial and civic groups. This includes visits to various institutions as opportunities are available.

The one-semester economic problems course deals with the science of modern business, being concerned with such practical matters as market price conditions, business organizations, money and banking, taxation, and distribution of incomes to people.

"Service for others" is the suitable slogan for the Social Science Service Club, which is an honorary organization composed of students who excel in the social science subjects. The purpose of the Club is to promote the spirit of work and service in our school and community. This is done by discussing and studying traits and characteristics that lead to a life of service.

This Mansfield Senior High School club was organized in 1926 and held its first meeting on February 26 of that year. Since then, the Club has done much toward helping others. In the past year, it has aided in the annual Red Cross drive. In December, a show was given in the auditorium and the proceeds of thirty dollars were donated to the Humane Society. In March of this year, the Club gave another show, part of the proceeds of which were given to the Hyphonarian. In addition, it has aided individuals who were in need.

Last semester's officers were: Mary Jane Curtiss, President; Thelma Rothrock, V. President; Mary Jean McCormick, Secretary; Leo Brown, Treasurer. The present semester's officers are: Katherine McCormick, President; Marianne Springer, V. President; Martha Hering, Secretary; Leo Brown, Treasurer. Mr. V. D. Coe is the advisor for this group and it is due to his efforts that the Club is one of the outstanding organizations of the school.

THE MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

By Mr. W. C. Kramer

The Mathematics Department of the Mansfield City School System consists of three years in the Junior High School and three in the Senior High School. This department also includes the work offered in the Vocational Courses under the title of shop mathematics.

In the arithmetic of the seventh and eighth grades, the different divisions are especially arranged to lead to a well-rounded knowledge of the practical affairs of life in which mathematics is involved. There is work on intuitive geometry, the formula, thrift, installment buying, taxation, stocks, bonds, and insurance. In the ninth year, the study of algebra is begun, and here the foundation is laid for the more advanced mathematics of the Senior High School.

Some special work in vocational arithmetic is begun in the Junior High School with more advanced work following in the machine shop work, and the automotive courses given in the Senior High School. In the former course, calculations for setting up the various machines in the shop, for laying out work, and for checking finished work, are required. In the latter course, calculations for horsepower, for piston displacement, transmission and differential ratios, and other problems involved in the design and construction of the automobile are required of the students.

In the Senior High, first year algebra is repeated for those who did not study it in the Junior High School. Then, in the first half of the second year, enough additional work is given to meet the average college entrance requirement in this subject. The second half of the second year is elective and gives the student a more substantial foundation for work in college mathematics.

Also, in the first year at the Senior High School, one year of plane geometry is offered. Later in the course, it is followed by solid geometry and trigonometry, each of these being a one-semester course. The plane and solid geometry courses enlarge the view of space and of space relations, and teach one to produce good, logical argumentation. Trigonometry is a correlation of arithmetic, algebra, and geometry. In beginning the course, the laboratory method is used. The meanings of the trigonometric ratios and other fundamental principles of the subject are developed and demonstrated through the activities of drawing, observing, and measuring, the various trigonometric functions. As a portion of this course, the opportunity is taken to study the use and the theory of the slide rule, which is rapidly assuming a place of prominence in those professions which require rapid and complicated computations, coupled with a high degree of accuracy.

Thus, we see offered in the schools of Mansfield a well-balanced group of mathematical studies, planned for both the practical and the theoretical development of the pupil. It is a group of courses designed to be of use and interest equally to the person planning to enter some form of vocational work, and to the person who attends the college or professional school aiming to fulfill the requirements of professional life.

Three Years Undefeated

THREE years undefeated! Thirty-two consecutive games without tasting defeat is the record that Mansfield's football teams may be justly proud of.

Coach Murphy will lose many of the mainstays of last year's team by graduation, and to inexperienced men will be given the task of carrying on to what possibly may be a national record for consecutive undefeated games.

The Tygers are now but three games below what is thought to be the record—thirty-five straight victories—and another undefeated season will bring them the title.

MANSFIELD 25—SIDNEY 0

Led by the long goalward dashes of Zivkoff and Brandon, Mansfield inaugurated her 1932 grid season with a fairly convincing 25-0 victory over an over-rated Sidney eleven. A 95-yard march in three plays for a touchdown late in the second period was easily the outstanding feat of the game; and except for this burst of offensive power, the Tygers were held on even basis throughout the first half. In the second half, however, three touchdowns were scored, turning the game into a rout.

In their victory the Tygers gave a good deal of promise, but the smooth-clicking offense of the previous season was missing. Inability of the punters to get their kicks away in the allotted time put Mansfield in several dangerous situations; all in all, they had six punts blocked. As a whole, however, Mansfield's play gave indications that the team would be almost as strong as the 1931 eleven and would again be among the outstanding grid teams of the state.

MANSFIELD 3—LIMA CENTRAL 3

Inability to cope with the long swift passes of Sanker, star Lima back, almost cost Mansfield an expensive defeat in her second game of the season. The Tygers completely outplayed Lima in the first half, and were denied a score only by several heartbreaking penalties, coupled with a few bad passes from the centers, which resulted in costly fumbles. After time and again threatening Central's goal, it was only by virtue of a beautiful place-kick by Becker Jenkins from the 20-yard line that the Men of Murphy held a 3 to 0 lead at the half.

In the last half the Tygers were completely outplayed and only dodged defeat by several magnificent goal-line stands. A drop-kick by Brentlinger in the closing minutes of the game tied the score.

MANSFIELD 51—GALION 0

Displaying their best form of the present season, Mansfield's eleven ran over, around, and between Galion to the tune of 51 to 0 to give their N. C. O. League rival the worst defeat in years. Beautiful ball-carrying, aided by almost perfect interference, spelled the doom of the Galion eleven, and from the first play the Tygers had complete control of the situation.

Mansfield scored touchdowns in every period, Selby and Brandon scoring two each in the first half while the varsity played.

At the beginning of the second half, substitutions were frequent, four complete teams being used by Coach Murphy. Even after the regulars were out, the replacements traveled just as swiftly toward the goal; and four touchdowns were registered by them in the last half.

MANSFIELD 6—ASHLAND 6

In one of the most bitterly contested encounters in the history of the N. C. O. League, Mansfield and Ashland fought to a 6 to 6 tie at Redwood Stadium before a capacity crowd of

Tyger Cagers Open Season With Victory

The Mansfield High School basketball team opened the season with a smashing and somewhat surprising victory over the strong Cleveland Glenville team, finishing with a score of 27 to 15. The first quarter, a rather nip-and-tuck affair, ended with the Tygers in the lead, 5 to 2. In the second period, the Bengals got under way and amassed a total of 20 points to Glenville's 8. Inwood Smith was high scorer for the Tygers, while Gene Brandon was outstanding on the defense.

In the second tilt of the season, the Men of Murphy defeated a speedy combination from Akron Kenmore. The first half of the fray was closely contested, with the Tygers leading at the intermission 11 to 7, finishing the game with a score of 27 to 15.

The contest with Cleveland East Tech was featured by strong defenses shown by both teams during the first half, the score being 7 to 6 for Cleveland. In the third quarter, both teams began scoring more consistently, with the Tygers taking the lead. The Tygers scored 12 points to Cleveland's 3 in the last quarter to cinch the game.

The fourth game, Mansfield vs. Columbus South, was marked by the outstanding performances of Zediker, Brandon, and Al Stickler, who led the Murphymen to a victory. Led by McQuaid, of Columbus, the invaders were ahead at the intermission, 12 to 10; the Tygers, in the last half, came back to win by a close score, 28 to 25.

Mansfield met its first defeat of the season at the hands of the strong Ashland crew, 36 to 22. The first half ended with Ashland leading, 12 to 11. Led by Earl Thomas, the Ashland team got under way in the final half and defeated the Tygers. Inability to stop Thomas caused Mansfield's "Waterloo."

One of the biggest upsets in the N. C. O. League to date was the defeat of Mansfield at the hands of Shelby, 25 to 21. The Tygers were virtually rushed off their feet in the first half. At the intermission, Shelby led 18 to 4. In the second half, Mansfield rallied valiantly, but the Whippets' lead was too much to overcome. This was a heart-crushing defeat, as Shelby was rated the weakest team in the league.

Mansfield played before the largest crowd of the season when she defeated Marion to the tune of 27 to 20. The Tygers, with the exception of a 13 to 13 tie, were in the lead throughout the game. Harding rallied the last quarter but without results.

The Orangemen of Galion felt the sting of an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Murphymen on their own floor, 32 to 17. The game closed the scholastic careers of Charles Saprano, Al Hartman, and Gene Brandon. Brandon, a three-sport letter man, played an outstanding game, scoring six points. The Tygers were in the lead throughout the contest, at one time leading 20 to 10.

In one of the most thrilling and best-played games of the season, the Murphymen defeated a fast Ashland outfit.

After trailing 13 to 2 at the half, the Tygers came back the last half to win by a one-point margin. With but ten seconds of play remaining and Mansfield on the short end of a 17 to 16 count, Inwood Smith, star of the fray, threw a basket to win, making the score 18 to 17.

The Tygers gained revenge for the defeat by Shelby earlier in the season by winning 38 to 25 on the Shelby court. I. Smith scored on the first play of the game and the Tygers remained on the winning end of the score throughout the game. Mansfield, aided on nearly every tipoff by John Schuster, was ahead 17 to 12 at the intermission. The last half was entirely in Mansfield's favor.

After winning over Shelby the night before, the Tygers fell before the charges of Cleveland West by a score of 34 to 16. Throughout the entire game, the locals had difficulty in parting the net, while the visitors were rather consistent. The opponents took an early lead, leaving the Tygers trailing 16 to 5 at the half. West was held scoreless in the third quarter, but scored 18 to our 5 in the last.

In the last contest on the home court, the Tygers overwhelmed the Orangemen of Galion, 49 to 34. The fray was marked by the outstanding performances of Al Stickler and Earl Greene, Stickler getting 20 points and Greene, 12. Not once in the game were the Tygers behind or in danger of losing

Track Team Has Successful Year

MANSFIELD 85½ — NEWARK 40½

Winning their second duel meet in as many starts, Mansfield's "Red Streaks" humbled Newark to the tune of 85½ to 40½. In scoring their decisive victory, the Tygers won firsts in everything but the mile, 220 low hurdles, and the javelin.

Becker Jenkins and Inwood Smith again led the Tygers, each winning two firsts, while Jenkins also ran on the winning 880-yard relay team. Smith set a new field record in the discus, heaving it 120' 6", breaking the old record by 4' 2". Zediker, Lersch, and Fatkin each won firsts to help the Mansfield cause.

MANSFIELD 84 — WILLARD 43

Scoring ten firsts out of a possible fifteen and winning the majority of the seconds, the "Red Streaks" trounced Willard in their annual track meet at Stadium Field, 84 to 43. Becker Jenkins again was highpoint man of the meet, winning both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, and was anchor man on the winning 880-yard relay team. Inwood Smith led the weightmen by winning both the shot and discus, while Dick Lersch again won the pole vault. Sexton, Willard's great distance runner, won both the mile and half-mile events.

Mansfield Relays — April 22, 1933

MANSFIELD 39½ — CLEVELAND EAST TECH 39

In the Seventh Annual Mansfield Relays, the largest and best known scholastic track meet in Ohio, Mansfield startled sport fans throughout the entire state by nosing out Cleveland East Tech, Ohio track champs, and defending relay team champions by ½ point in a stirring clinch to a close, hard-fought battle, which had existed between the two schools throughout the afternoon's events. East Tech, led by the versatile Jesse Owens, were the heavy favorites to cop first honors; but event after event passed, and still the "Red Streaks" clung close to the Cleveland school; and as a fitting climax to an afternoon of brilliant performances, Mansfield nosed out Tech in the mile relay, placing fifth in this final event, and the point thus gained gave them the meet by ½ point, 39½ to 39.

Five relay records and four state records were shattered, while one national scholastic record was equaled in the course of the afternoon. Although East Tech was defeated, it was their flashy star, Jesse Owens, who stole the spotlight; for he broke three state records, in the 100, 220, and broad jump; and in the 100, he tied the national scholastic record by running it in 9.6 seconds. Inwood Smith, of Mansfield, broke the relay record in the discus by 7' 6", throwing 128' 2". The former high jump record of 5' 11½" was bettered by Walker of Toledo Libbey, who went 6' 2¼", thus also establishing a new state record.

With three duel meets and a ½-point victory in the Seventh Annual Mansfield Relays safely stored away at this writing, the "Red Streaks" are now turning into the home-stretch with visions of an undefeated season, the first in four or five years. Starting the season with an inexperienced squad, the Tygers breezed through their first duel meets without difficulty, overwhelming their opposition and winning by decisive scores. Their totally unexpected victory in the Relays, the largest scholastic track meet in the state, with the exception of the state meet at Columbus, showed the true strength of the squad. Due to this splendid showing, Mansfield is favored to defeat Fremont and Canton McKinley in duel meets, although a very decisive victory seems impossible, and are picked as favorites in the District meet at Fremont, when Tiffin, Fremont, and Sandusky are expected to give them the most opposition.

Coach Mehock has rounded up a well-balanced squad, which, although having, of course, several outstanding men, does not depend on any individual star. Becker Jenkins and Cliff Smith are outstanding in track events, while Dick Lersch and Inwood Smith lead the field men. Other outstanding men on the squad are Hallibrin, Wallis, Fatkin, Spayde, Schuster, Zediker, Olin, and Patterson. Of this group, only Lersch, Fatkin, Schuster, and Olin will be eligible next year; the rest will be lost by graduation.

MANSFIELD 79 — FREMONT 48

Winning in a fashion which surprised everyone, Mansfield's "Red Streaks" downed Ross High of Fremont for their fourth consecutive victory in duel meets, also keeping their record clear of a defeat, as they entered the home-stretch of the season. Fremont, led by Moore and Pettyford, was expected to come the closest to defeating the Tygers; but the Mansfield men continued to show their fine form, and won the meet without difficulty.

Outstanding in the course of the events was the breaking of the field discus record by Inwood Smith, who, by throwing 130' 8", broke his own record of 128' 2". Becker Jenkins again won the 100 and 220, while Olin copped the javelin with a throw of 149' 8". Fremont is expected to offer Mansfield the stiffest competition in the district meet, which is to be held at Fremont.

The "M" Association

The "M" Association of M. H. S. is a club of boys whose primary purpose is to promote athletics; the secondary object is purely social, and there exists a close relation between the two.

Mr. Mehock is the club advisor. Each spring, an initiation is held, when new members are received. The coveted "M" may be won by participation in events, or by serving as manager, trainer, or cheer-leader.

This year the Club has been very active, helping at games and track events, selling programs, and sponsoring several school dances.

the lead. Mansfield held a 26 to 11 advantage at the half. With C. Smith leading the assault in the third quarter, the Murphymen led 40 to 22 during the third canto. This score of 49 was the largest compiled by the Tygers thus far this season.

Led by Hero, who certainly lived up

Mansfield's hopes to go places in the tournament were shattered by a strong Sandusky outfit, 30 to 17. In the second period, the Sanduskians piled up an immense lead which was too much for the locals to overcome. Sandusky led 20 to 7 at the half. In the second half, the Tygers kept pace with the winners, each getting ten points. Captain Hess led Sandusky with 12 points, while Al Stickler played best for Mansfield, getting four goals for eight points.

The Golf Club

Golf is a comparatively new sport in the Mansfield Senior High School. Coached by Mr. Oberlander, the boys are looking forward to a very interesting season. The team of ten will meet Shelby, Ashland, Galion, Wooster, San-

The Girls' Athletic Association

The Girls' Athletic Association was organized to create interest in athletics. Any girl is eligible to belong but must have 100 points to be a member. These points are received by practicing and playing on a team in the intramural tournament, hiking, a grade of A in class, and being a squad leader.

At least two sports are offered a semester for extra-curricular activities. The sports are soccer, end ball, volley ball, and kitten ball. Each of the six classes has a manager for these sports. The executive body, faculty advisor, and managers help supervise the teams and develop a desire for active recreation when the girls are out of school. Under the splendid supervision of Miss Margaret Clapsaddle, the A. A. has been the most outstanding club for girls in the school. With her, work an executive body of four officers and six board members.

During the last year the constitution was revised. It was hoped that a new life would be given to the organization; and with a higher purpose, greater influence would be felt throughout the school. The accomplishment of the purpose seems to be well under way. Meetings are held every other week, at which time student talent is displayed on the programs. After every sport the insignia are given to those who have earned 300 or 1000 points. It is the wish of every girl to wear the emblem, the highest reward which is given to the members.

The A. A. is not confined entirely to sports. During the last year it sponsored one dance for the student body, had a hike for those interested in earning extra points, and the initiation was given in the form of a novelty party at the Y. W. C. A. The annual man dance was the special social feature of the year, held on May 5; and at class day, when the pin for leadership-activeness and athletic ability has been presented, another successful year for the Girls' Athletic Association has been made history.

Officers for the last semester: Bernadette Weaver, President; Martha Giffin, Vice President; Carolyn Finefrock, Secretary; and Margaret Strickler, Treasurer.

MANSFIELD GAINS DELAY VICTORY

In the delays here last week, Mansfield won an unusually difficult schedule with the score of $13\frac{1}{2}$ —0. There were fifty athletes entered in the contest, all Coach Merry Hehock's boys of M. H. S. The results of the events are as follows:

Tiddeley-winks

Inwood Smith (first), Dick Lersch, Frank Kiefer. Time: History class.

Marbles

Bob Selby (first). Dick Remy, Mark Wolcott. Time: English class.

Kiddie Kar Race

Al Hartman (first), Dave Kohler, Charlie Saprano. 4 runs, 4 hits, 4 flat tires.

Scooter Relay

Becker Jenkins (first), Russel Doebla, Robert Wolsford. Time: 10" flat — this breaks the local record of 10.9".

Jumping Rope

Bill McClurg (first), Cliff Smith, Charles Ireland — Height: 10' (Was you dere, Charlie?)

One misfortune clouded the crowning victory of the Mansfield lagsters. Cliff Smith fell into a mud puddle after tripping on the rope. Serious injury was incurred by his dignity.

SHOPPERS' HINTS

Inwood Smith, Inc., can furnish you with reliable gigolos at low prices. He has an appropriate line for any occasion.

House wrecking done cheap. Why take an inferior job when Kaler, Zediker, Inc., can do it so completely?

Dr. Jean Gorman will remove your health, happiness, and pocketbook at any time, day or night, by request.

Fortune telling by Sophiat Snyder-vet, gypsy princess. If your fortune does not work out, your money will be refunded (if you can catch her.)

Betty Alexander and Dorothy Baker are giving cooking lessons free to any one interested. (There's a chance for the boys Miss Essex wouldn't take.)

WILL CONTINUE FAMOUS PAPER

Charges Brought by Prominent Citizens

WAFUFUS Editors, jailed last week for publishing malicious reports, are once more free and announce that they will continue their publication. Charges were brought first by Bud Davey, who charged that the paper bore a false notice of pending divorce between Mr. Davey and his wife, the former Pat Kramer. Mrs. Davey, her husband says, went to New York to select her spring clothes, and the Wasufus carried a notice that she had left him.

Immediately following the arrest of the editors, similar charges were filed by Harry Hoiles and his wife, the former Margaret Farber, and by Mr. and Mrs. Rex Morris, (nee "Puttie" Hickson), also by Mr. Arthur Schmidt and his wife, Mrs. Ruth Waefler Schmidt, famous designer.

SONGS THAT SATISFY

How do you do, everybody, how do you do? This is the Festerfield Hour featuring the Greene Brothers, that new popular radio quartet. They want me to tell you that they find broadcasting much more profitable and healthy than personal appearances. The grapefruits they could eat for breakfast, but rotten eggs . . . really they were too much of the good thing. For their first number the boys will sing, "You'll Never Get Up to Heaven That Way," dedicating it to all egg throwers.

* * * *

Tonight as guest artists with Rudy Zediker, that famous saxophone playing orchestra leader and crooner of love songs, we have that trio of Melody Maids—Bea, Dot, and Vee. Step up, girls, and tell the boys that "Maybe It's Because I Love You Too Much."

* * * *

And folks, this is Little Jack Pealer, playing his own composition, "Dancing on My Heart," and dedicating it to Betty Meyers.

* * * *

Just to make the evening complete, we bring you Cab Brandon and his orchestra. Take it, Cab, and croon that old favorite, "Penthouse Serenade."

Perry Cook also charges the paper with breaking up his romance with Yvonne Armstrong by publishing news of his engagement to Naomi Lorow one week late and with doing the same thing in regard to his engagement to Yvonne when Inga Jesson was his latest love and working Inga against Bea Kochenderfer and so on and on. (We won't bore you by a complete list.)

Other minor charges were brought by: Ray Foltz—blackmail regarding a New Year's Eve Party; Carol Brooks—false report of her marriage to Earl Boles; Mathilda Staub (famous dancer from Honolulu)—publishing a false report on disposal of senior funds; Jim Wallace—for failure to mention his new car on the front page.

IDIOTORIAL

First, foremost, uppermost, topmost, and possibly bottom-most for serious consideration, we find ourselves minus two good classes of seniors. Ah! but they've learned! (We don't know what!)

* * * *

Subsequently and consequently we glide on to find the things that are missing. Bigger and better lunch periods are decidedly lacking. What we need is monitors who will call us twenty minutes early and teachers who will forget about it and not keep us longer.

* * * *

A one-hour period of sleep should be set aside each day for all of us with an optional two hours on the "morning after the night before."

* * * *

There is a way to eliminate "Blue Mondays," according to our latest inquiries and discoveries. We suggest that henceforth there should be no school on Mondays.

* * * *

The last problem, and one for which I can find no answer, is how to keep all our "happy couples" happy and eliminate all the "fights" they have. Think of all the perfectly good A's we could have if our minds were in the proper place.

SOCKS AT SOCIETY

Entertains Guest.

Mrs. Ezra Billings of Adario, formerly Miss Beatrice Kochenderfer, entertained her house guest, Mrs. Homer Olds of Rome, Ohio, with a tasy pull on Friday evening. Mrs. Olds was heretofore Miss Betty Hancock of Mansfield.

Celebrity Guest at Club.

Madame Mildred Frankeberger, now a famous toe dancer, was guest at the meeting of the Sewing Circle in Shendoah. Madame Frankeberger was formerly a resident of this city and was gladly welcomed by all her friends. She will, in the near future, be feature dancer with the Ringling Bros. Circus.

Speaks at Club.

Kenneth Moore last Saturday honored the Literary Club of Alta by speaking on his latest book, "Waiting on Fussy Women."

six thousand. Although the Tygers continued their sensational winning streak, advancing it to 28 consecutive games without defeat, they scarcely deserved even a tie; for they were outplayed throughout the greater part of the game by the Ashland eleven.

Capitalizing on a fumble by Ashland on her 10-yard line in the first play of the game, the Tygers pushed over a score before the game was two minutes old. This was about the only time in the entire game that they were in a threatening position, although several severe penalties broke up offensive drives which possibly might have ended in a score.

MANSFIELD 13—CLEVELAND CENTRAL 7

The phrase that "a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten" was proved to the satisfaction of the some six thousand fans who jammed into Stadium Field and witnessed the struggle between Mansfield and Cleveland Central, Senate champs in the "fifth city" last year, and which was won by the Tygers 13 to 7. Facing virtual defeat in the closing minutes of the game, the Bengals staged one of the most remarkable comebacks ever made by a Mansfield team and drove over the winning touchdown in the closing minutes, following a 55-yard march down the field. It was not until late in the fourth quarter that Mansfield gained possession of the ball in offensive territory.

The victory was one of the most important ones registered in recent years and ran Mansfield's winning streak to 30 consecutive games without defeat.

MANSFIELD 27—MARION HARDING 9

For the second consecutive year, Mansfield broke the jinx which Marion has held over her, and in a loosely played game at Stadium Field, the Tygers won a decisive 27 to 9 victory. Although failing to show at any time the power and drive to which local fans have become accustomed, the Tygers had little difficulty with the Hardings eleven. Led by Brandon, the Bengals made their own breaks, and then took advantage of them.

Two touchdowns were the result of intercepted passes and one from a blocked kick. Only one touchdown was registered from scrimmage, that when Jenkins raced around end from the 15-yard line after a march of 55 yards. Gene Brandon made the longest run ever recorded on the field when he intercepted Whitecum's pass on his own goal-line and raced 100 yards for a score.

MANSFIELD 46—NORWALK 0

Playing her last home game of the 1932 campaign, Mansfield decisively trounced a light Norwalk eleven 46 to 0. The game, which was played in the midst of a miniature blizzard, was controlled throughout by the Tygers, who pushed over the first touchdown in less than two minutes of play.

MANSFIELD 33—SHELBY 0

Selby, Mansfield's arch rival on the gridiron, was defeated in the final game of the season at Hiles Field 33 to 0. Held on almost even terms the first half, the Tygers returned in the final two periods to give their opponents one of the worst lickings in the history of the grid classic between the two schools.

The game marked the final appearance of a number of Mansfield players, several of whom were selected on the All-Ohio High School team by officials and press authorities. The favored players were Inwood Smith, Bob Selby, and Gene Brandon. Players who are members of the graduating class are Captain Ohle, Brandon, Selby, Zivkoff, Simmons, Inwood Smith, Cliff Smith, Huess, McClurg, and Wilcott.

Mansfield, with this victory, closed the fourth consecutive season without a defeat, running her winning streak up to 32 straight games. This is one of the most remarkable records in the history of Ohio scolastic football, and we hope that next year's team will be able to add to it.

"Well," said Miss Patterson, "What have you to say for yourself?"

"So you wanted two more days of grace, did you?"

"No, Miss Patterson—of Emily!"
